Background

COVID-19 has been a particularly sharp challenge for people with serious conditions and palliative care needs, as well as their families and friends. The pandemic has created an unprecedented need for compassion, support, and care in our communities.

In response to the interruption of services and other challenges experienced by community-based organizations because of COVID-19 pandemic, the BC Centre for Palliative Care created the Supporting our Communities in the time of COVID-19 Grant Program and is calling for grant applications.

The aim of this grant is to assist non-profit organizations across the province to initiate, adapt, or continue to deliver critical community-based supports for isolated or frail older individuals and those living with or dying from serious illnesses and their families who have been disproportionately impacted by the COVID-19 epidemic.

Spreading Compassionate Communities

This grant cycle is part of the Centre's efforts to spread the creation of compassionate communities across British Columbia. Through our previous three grant cycles, a total of 68 compassionate community initiatives were implemented successfully across BC; 50% of the initiatives are based in rural and remote communities.

Evaluation of these initiatives shows a positive impact at different levels: 1) volunteers: improved knowledge, skills and confidence 2) organizations: improved engagement with the public, enhanced competency and new partnerships 3) public: better supported, socially engaged, better informed of available resources.

What is a Compassionate Community?

A Compassionate Community is a community of people who are committed to improve the experiences of those living with a serious illness, caregiving, dying and grieving.

Living in a community that cares for others makes us cope better with our health challenges, keeps us connected, and helps us find meaning in life.
Compassionate Communities benefit us all.

It is a community that...

- takes an active role in caring for people affected by these experiences,
- connects people to supports,
- raises awareness about end-of-life issues,
- helps people plan for the way they want to be treated and cared for if they become ill,
- builds proactive supportive networks

A Compassionate Community helps its people to live well and with dignity right until the end.

About BC Centre for Palliative Care

BC Centre for Palliative Care (BCCPC) is a provincial non-profit organization established by the Ministry of Health to accelerate improvement in palliative care in British Columbia. We work with partners in the health system and community to accelerate best practices and promising innovations in palliative care and supports.

Our work focuses on:

- Providing palliative care education for health care professionals
- Working collaboratively with our health system partners to spread best practices in palliative care across the province
- Supporting community-based organizations to create supportive, caring networks for patients and families
- Developing information materials and resources about palliative care and Advance Care Planning for British Columbians

We strive to help British Columbians affected by serious illnesses have the best possible quality of life.

About the Grant Program

Purpose

The Supporting our Communities in the time of COVID-19 Grant Program is designed to support eligible non-profit organizations in BC to initiate, adapt, or continue providing compassionate care supports and services for isolated or frail seniors, and those living with and dying from serious illnesses and their families, during a time when service delivery has been challenged by the restrictions of the pandemic.

The Grant Program helps eligible non-profit organizations in BC to:

1. Continue a proven program or service,
2. Adapt an existing program or service in response to the challenges presented by COVID-19, or
3. Implement a new approach to meeting community needs highlighted by the pandemic.

Twenty projects will be funded through this grant program. Only one application per organization will be accepted.

Benefits

The Grant Program offers:

- ✓ Funding up to $3000 per project over 10 months.
- ✓ Consultation support with the implementation and evaluation of the funded project.
- ✓ Access to networking and exchange with other organizations.
- ✓ Access to a network of expert facilitators, coaches and palliative care and health promotion professionals.
- ✓ Individual coaching, as needed.

Projects Start and End Date

The proposed projects must be planned so that the start date is not earlier than September 1, 2020 and the end date is no later than June 30, 2021.

Eligibility

Eligible Applicants: MUST be non-profit community organizations registered in B.C. and provide direct support services for isolated or frail older adults, persons with serious illnesses* and those at the end of their lives, as well as their families (the target populations).

Eligible Projects: MUST be aligned with one of the BCCPC funding priorities:

1. provide practical, psychosocial and/or spiritual support services to the target population including supports for grief and bereavement.
2. enhance public awareness of and engagement in advance care planning. Organizations interested in advance care planning projects MUST complete the BCCPC's training curriculum, use the toolkit for Community-led Advance Care Planning Sessions for the Public and offer at least three (3) sessions during the project. See the Appendix for more information.

Applications MUST demonstrate that members from the target population(s) will be engaged in the project.

Serious illness: is a term used to describe long term illnesses where it is expected that death will be a direct consequence of the specified illness.

Serious illnesses may include, but are not limited to:

- cancer
- heart disease
- chronic obstructive pulmonary disease
- dementia
- heart failure
- neurodegenerative disease
- chronic liver disease
- end-stage kidney disease

Priority Communities

Awards will be reserved for projects particularly directed to serve rural and remote communities:

A rural community is a community of 10,000 to 40,000 residents.

A remote community is a community of less than 10,000 residents.

Application Deadlines

To apply for funding, organizations must submit a complete application online no later July 31, 2020.

All applicants will be notified of results by email. Awardees are required to sign, scan and email their award acceptance letters to seedgrant@bc-cpc.ca within 10 days from the award letter date.

Criteria for Evaluating Applications

Applications will be evaluated using the following criteria, which indicate a high likelihood of project success:

- ✓ Clear goals and objectives
- ✓ Clear description of project activities
- ✓ Engagement of the target group
- ✓ Achievable outcomes
- ✓ Appropriate evaluation measures
- ✓ Appropriate budget plan

Use of Award Money

- Award money MUST only be used for the funded project
- Award money MUST be used within ten months from receiving the award (by June 30, 2021). Any unused funds may be recoverable by the BCCPC.
- Award money cannot be used:
 1. For wages or expenses that sit outside of the funded project.
 2. For equipment purchases or leases.
 3. For attendance at conferences.

Payments

The award money will be transferred to each successful applicant (awardee) in two payments.

- The first payment of $2500 will be issued after receiving the award acceptance letter from the awardee.
- The final payment of $500 will be issued upon completion of the project and submission of the final report.

Expectations from Awardees

Reports

Awardees will be required to submit a Final Report (no later than one month after project completion) using the form provided by BCCPC. Report forms will be issued after the Award Acceptance letter has been received.

At project mid-point, BCCPC will contact awardees by phone or email for an update on the project's progress and to offer support, if needed, to ensure the project's success. Projects are encouraged to contact BCCPC at any time for consultation and support.

Presentations

BCCPC may invite awardees to make a brief presentation to showcase the funded project at one or more events to be held by BCCPC during or in the year following the funding period.

Acknowledgement of Funding

Awardees must agree to acknowledge financial support from BCCPC on advertisements, printed materials, promotional items, press releases and websites. Acknowledgment guidelines will be provided with awards.
